WOMAN'S CAREFUL AIM BRINGS DOWN A DEER

MRS. F. E. PARKER HANDLES RIFLE
WITH WONDERFUL AIM.

First Shot Fired Brought the Animal Down in its Tracks—An Unusually Successful Season Closed Last Week—Our Nimrods Must Now Content Themselves With the Smaller Game—Revision is Planned.

Mrs. F. E. Parker is to be congratulated upon her success as a deer hunter. She bears the distinction of being the first and only woman in the county to puncture the flesh of one of these fleet footed animals with the aid of a rifle, denoting a careful aim and steady nerve; a marksmanship that would do credit to the old time nimrods of the male persuasion. It was not an accident, as many may think, when it is taken into consideration that the shot was fired by a woman. It was a careful aim and brought down the victim of her steady aim the first time. Mrs. Parker's success was attained a few days before the expiration of the open season. She and her husband were guests at Ross Bros. farm in the town of Pelland. The hunting party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Parker and Walter and Daniel Ross. One of the Ross boys was engaged in chasing deer and the balance of the party were watching the runways. Mrs. Parker waited patiently, and she was soon rewarded. She soon realized her ambition, for a deer appeared on the scene. She raised her rifle and fired, the bullet finding lodging in the beast's breast. Killing it instantly and not spoiling a pound of flesh. Ordinarily, a man would not care to be within a mile of a woman with a weapon in her hand, but Mrs. Parker is an exception to this rule. She is proud of her capture and has reason to be.

The open season for hunting deer has closed for another year, having ended last week. Local nimrods have met with unusually good success in their expeditions during the season just ended and a large number of deer have been brought into the city. The hunters have helped out the exchequer of the county considerably. As a result County Clerk Brennan was kept quite busy during the twenty days of open season attending to the wants of those who were after game. He issued 400 licenses to resident hunters, most of them being issued to residents of the county.

From now on, the nimrods must content themselves with smaller game. Fowl will undoubtedly be the object of desire for a few weeks and smaller unprotected game will be given attention.

Very wisely two deer only of any kind can be killed by any one person during the open season and all packages containing same must be marked with the name of the owner and the amount and character of the game.

A number of deer hunters in some parts of the state had considerable difficulty with the express companies about shipping their deer home. The hunters had their licenses and had marked their venison for shipping as required by law, but the express companies refused to accept the same on account of its having to be transported out of the state in order to reach the home of the owners in the southern part of the state.

The law says it shall not be shipped out of the state, but in a case of this kind there should be some provision made to cover it.

Hunters claim they will institute a test case against the express companies. Most of the trouble arose at Florence.

We have it from one of our state senators that the game laws will be juggled with again at the coming session of the legislature. He informs us that the laws will be made more strict than they are at the present time. The good influences of the game laws have been shown this fall by the abundance of game. It is to be hoped the legislators will make the law even stronger.

GREAT RAILROAD CENTER

The Pan-American Exposition City and Its Connection With the World Outside—A Great Event.

The city of Buffalo, the home of the Pan-American Exposition, is the greatest railroad center in the world, twenty-six lines converging there and tapping the entire railroad system of British America and the United States. All of these trunk lines, together with their connections and feeders, are manifesting a deep interest in the success of this superb and stupendous $10,000,000 object lesson, whose purpose is to fully exhibit the marvelous progress of the New World up to the dawning of the Twentieth Century, to group in beautiful and colossal palaces its products in every department of art, science, agriculture, electricity, mechanism and invention, where they may be best seen, admired, studied and appreciated by all its people and to bring into intimate, friendly, business and joyous holiday association the denizens of every clime and country, from Baffin's Bay to Patagonia. For this reason, and to this end, the entire railroad system of this continent will combine in according extremely low and liberal rates of transportation, within the reach of the masses and certain to attract them.

The wife of Lieut. Chas. E. McCullough of the Ninth U. S. Cavalry, is expected to arrive in Phillips tomorrow morning to visit the Lieutenant's mother, Mrs. Capt. Geo. W. Brower. The Lieutenant's wife comes from Salt Lake City, Utah. It will be remembered by our readers that the Lieutenant was married to a daughter of Gov. Forbes of Utah just before he left with his regiment for China. Our people will be glad to extend to the young lady a hearty welcome. We all think very highly of the Lieutenant and those of us who know him, know that he has used good judgment in selecting his future partner for life.—Phillips Times.

Lieut. McCullough will be remembered by many in this city, having at one time been an employee in the Vincennes office. His rise in life is appreciated, especially by the writer who is quite familiar with his early life, which was not strewn with roses.

MUSICAL HOYLES GOOD

Gave us a Great Treat at the Grand Opera House Friday Evening—Frenzied Music for a Dance.

The Musical Hoyle's orchestra gave a concert at the Grand opera house last Friday evening, under the directions of the Chicago Lyceum Bureau. Despite the fact that the audience was small, the Hoyle's were at their best. It is one of the strongest musical organizations that has ever visited our city and those who heard the concert are loud in their praises of these popular entertainers. The company consists of father, two sons and two daughters in orchestra and musical combinations, assisted by Mark Conley, a polished and up-to-date character sketch artist. In his dialect of the Jew, Irishman, German and Swede, he proved that he is an artist and brought rounds of laughter from the audience. All of his work teamed with natural wit. The program of the evening was well selected and artistically rendered. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Epworth League of the M. E. church. Several of the young people of the city were so delighted with the music that they persuaded the company to remain over another evening. The dance was preceded by a concert, both of which were well attended.

Wm. Rumery left last Thursday for Three Lakes on business connected with the Woodruff & Maguire Lumber company. He will move his family to that place next spring, the company having closed up their business in this city.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY HERE FOR INVESTMENT

A FEW COTTAGES WOULD BRING IN A NICE LITTLE INCOME.

The Number of Rentable Places Shows Us That Something Must Be Done—There is a Chance for Speculative Inclined Persons to Spend a Few Thousand Dollars Profitably—A Substantial Town.

There is a golden opportunity in Rhinelander for the investment of a little capital in the erection of dwelling houses and flats. The demand for homes is increasing and naturally the supply is lessening. It has come to that pass when something must be done in the way of interesting men of means to invest in the manner suggested. True the scarcity of houses speaks well for the city in a way, but there is a negative argument. It would and no doubt does appear to many who are not familiar with the conditions that resident men of means feel a little skeptical as to the safety of such investment. Those who know our men in the business walks of life know differently, however, and realize that their investments are along different lines. They place their money where they anticipate greater returns on the investment.

At the existing high rate of rents it is apparent to all that there is money to be made in renting. There is not a city in the whole Wisconsin valley that holds out better promises for the future than Rhinelander does. Its stability is unquestioned and it is but in its infancy. It is destined to be the Mecca of manufacturing in the territory named for it has all the necessary advantages to give it prominence in the industrial world.

In all candor we would dedicate this article to speculative inclined persons. There is a chance to realize handsomely on the investment of a few thousand dollars in the erection of cottages or flats. The organization of the Rhinelander Advancement association will help materially in supplying the demand, but its good effects in this direction will be slow in materializing.

Not a day passes but that we hear queries made for houses and for a newcomer to find a desirable place is an impossibility and many are becoming impatient in the search. A thousand dollar well built home here will rent at the present time for $15 a month. This will give the investor eighteen per cent. on his investment. Adding six per cent. for taxes, insurance and repairs, it leaves a net gain of twelve per cent. This is certainly a good investment for any man.

Non-residents! If you have a few thousand dollars lying idle, Rhinelander offers you the opportunity to invest it profitably. This is no idle talk or dream indulged in by the writer, but a fact that can be proven by simple investigation. During the coming year one hundred new homes should be erected in this city. They would find a ready occupancy and would set at ease of mind many who have grown weary looking for a place to shelter them from the chilly zephyrs.

During the past year the writer has observed just one "for rent" sign and that was short lived, being pulled down the same day it was put up.

CLEVER SWINDLING SCHEME.

Worked With Success in Some Parts of the State—A Warning.

Rhinelander and Oneida county people are warned of a swindling scheme that has been worked with considerable success in the state. The scene of their last operation is at Logansville, a village near Baraboo. First a man appeared and desired a gentleman to become an agent for gold watches of a cheap make, sold him three and took an order for half a dozen more.

Before leaving, the stranger left a letter on the window and then repeated the performance at a number of other places, always leaving a sealed letter behind him as if he had forgotten it. The next day another stranger appeared and asked for the letters. When he found that they had been opened he demanded damages and would finally offer to settle for what he considered a reasonable sum. In one case the stranger received $50 in cash and a note of $50. He made the gentleman believe that to open a letter was a state prison offense and in that way forced his claim. Not long after it was found that the whole matter was a clever swindle and the officers were notified.

Rev. J. E. Farmer, presiding elder of the Appleton district, was a visitor in the city last Thursday and Friday. On Thursday evening he filled the pulpit at the M. E. church, delivering a very interesting address to a fair sized audience.

An apple social will be given at the home of Mrs. A. J. Lytle tomorrow (Friday) evening under the auspices of the Epworth League of the M. E. church. The proceeds will go toward purchasing a new organ for the church. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend and a good time is assured.

An Enthusiast

Is an individual who believes about four times as much as he can prove, and who can prove four times as much as anybody else believes. We're not enthusiasts, not a bit of it. We believe we sell as good clothing as the best. Come in and give us an opportunity to prove the statement.

We've Got Wheels

REYNOLDS PRINTING COMPANY.
MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN.

A new high record for seats on the stock exchange, New York, was made the other day when that of S. C. Coffey was sold for $14,500. Albert J. Elias, former president of the Third Avenue railroad, recently purchased a membership for $16,000. A seat on the Baltimore stock exchange was purchased for $4,500 by Frank R. Kahn. This is a record price for seats there.

A certain New York hotel uses a bushel of potatoes a year for pen-wipers on the tables in the writing rooms. Every morning a large potato is put in a compartment of the pen box, and after twenty-four hours the potato is removed and another put in. Pens in penholders are stuck in the potato half a dozen at a time, giving it the appearance of a porcupine.

Two Hungarians, Messrs. Polak and Virag, who some little while ago discovered a system of very rapid telegraphy, are now said to have invented a system by which 60,000 words per hour can be transmitted and, what is more wonderful, printed in ordinary characters on a slip of sensitized paper at the receiving end. The slip comes out of the receiving instrument ready to be gummed on to a form for delivery.

A firm in Lyons, France, takes advantage of the shortening of cotton fibers under non-mercuric treatment by caustic potash to produce in silk webs certain peculiar and very rich embossed effects. The silken webs have cotton threads at fixed distances, which, when the chemical solution is applied, shrink, while the silk, keeping its original length, is gathered in tiny folds. In this way the most diversified patterns are produced.

For some time past efforts to locate a squeaking noise in the pipe organ at Bethlehem church, Sheboygan, Wis., have proved fruitless until recently, when the organ was overhauled and the trouble discovered. In one of the large pipes a live owl was found, which is now in the possession of J. W. Miel, the organist. Now that one mystery is cleared up, the problem of explaining how the owl got into the organ is yet to be solved.

Butterflies have often been met out at sea, and the fragile things will hover about a ship for days. A scientist of this city recently saw a butterfly, the monarch commonly known as the milkweed butterfly, 600 miles from land. It played about the ship for some time and then disappeared. When asked if he thought it would land, the scientist replied that he started out expecting to, and he thought probably the butterfly had the same intention.

Bavaria has the most curious of all claims to notoriety, which is that it possesses the longest lightning conductor in the world. It rises some yards above the top of the meteorological station on the Zugspitze, the highest point in the German empire, and runs down the side of the mountain to the bottom of the Hohenlath, where there is running water all the year around. The length of the rod is five and one-half kilometers—nearly three and a half miles.

An American who visited the Paris exposition thinks its failure to realize expectations was due to two things. It was not sufficiently localized and its magnificent distances made people weary. The other trouble was disappointment, with what had been announced as some of the biggest features, like the telescope that was to bring the image of the moon within a few miles. The visitor says the show resolved itself into a "Sunday afternoon party."

It is said that the curved pages of the ordinary book are injurious to the eye of a reader. The curvature necessitates a constant change of the focus of the eye as it reads from one side to another, and oscillary muscles are under constant strain. Moreover, the light falls unequally upon both sides of the page, further interfering with a continued clear field of vision. It is suggested that the difficulty might be obliterated if the lines should be printed parallel to the binding instead of at right angle to it.

The youngest reader of manuscript in New York is the grandson of a partner in a big publishing house. For the past three years, and now he is only 16 years old, he has read manuscripts, chiefly boy's stories, and his judgment has been verified by the success of the books which he has accepted. One would naturally expect that a boy would be the best judge of a boy's story, but no other publishing house has submitted such manuscripts to boys. The readers for most of them are men.

Trolley cars of a suburban electric railway near St. Louis have a complete telephone outfit whereby their crews are able to converse with the headquarters office on occasion. Each car carries a telephone set and a jointed fishing rod, the sections of which are wired. On the tip of the rod is a stout wire hook and at the butt of the rod is a piece of flexible conducting cord ending in a plug which may be inserted in a socket on one of the vestibules of the car. Alongside the tracks is a telephone wire.

IS A GUEST OF HONOR

Oom Paul Kruger Received with Enthusiasm in Paris.

HE IS GREETED BY A VAST CONCOURSE

Striking Scenes on His Arrival—Days a Visit to President Loubet, and Is in Turn Visited by That Official.

Paris, Nov. 26.—Mr. Kruger arrived in Paris at 10:10 Saturday morning and was given a magnificent reception with vast crowds. The boulevards were crisscrossed with vast crowds. Mr. Kruger and party entered the train at Dijon at 6:20 a. m. His saloon cars were attached to the train de Luxe from the Riviera to Paris.

Cheered Along the Route. In spite of the early hour a fair number of inhabitants assembled on the platform to cheer the departing statesman. Mr. Kruger uttered a few words of thanks to the city for its splendid welcome.

The train only stopped once en route, at La Roche, where a deputation, with flags, was waiting at the station to present Mr. Kruger with a warmly worded address of admiration and sympathy for the Boer cause. Mr. Kruger thanked the deputation, through his interpreter. The crowd, which was of respectable numbers for such a small town, gave the distinguished traveler unstinted applause. Elsewhere along the route there were the same scenes as Friday. People were waiting on the sides of the track and on bridges and other points of vantage. They waved their hats and cheered as the train rushed past at the highest speed.

Landscapes Black with People. Nearing Paris these gatherings grew more frequent and of larger numbers, until the train approached the terminus, the Gare de Lyon, here. Then a remarkable spectacle was presented. Not only the windows but the roofs of the houses commanding a view of the track were covered with spectators. In addition, the railroad employees, engineers, cleaners, porters and guards had clambered on the trains lying on the side of the tracks and at the coupling platforms—at every point where a glimpse only of the train itself could be secured. This, however, was merely a foretaste of the spectacle which greeted Mr. Kruger's eyes when the train steamed into the station itself. Notwithstanding stringent precautions to admit only ticket holders, a large assemblage filled the station, while through the open doors could be seen a huge concourse of people gathered in the courtyard outside. The mayor and municipal councillors, a number of senators, deputies, army officers and reporters were mustered on the platform.

Welcomed by the Mayor. Mr. Kruger was to have passed through the station-hall, which had been specially arranged as a salon of honor, being profusely decorated with flowers, and where he was to be formally received by the mayor and municipal councillors, but, for some reason, the mayor welcomed him on the platform instead, and Mr. Kruger, to the great disappointment of those waiting in the salon of honor, passed out through another door to the front of the station, where a pair-horse landau was drawn up. Mr. Kruger entered this vehicle and was at once driven off for his hotel, amid enthusiastic cheering, which followed him along the whole route—along the outer boulevards, across the Place de la Republique, which was a perfect sea of spectators, and through the central boulevards. He arrived at the Hotel Scribe at 11:30 a. m.

A large escort of mounted municipal guards rode around Mr. Kruger's carriage. All Paris Turns Out. Along the main boulevards the crowds increased in size, and as Mr. Kruger reached the central portion of the city the sidewalks were blocked and every window was filled with sightseers, trees had been climbed and boxes, chairs and ladders were brought into use to permit a glimpse of the noted stranger. Within two blocks of the hotel the streets were so crowded that progress was impeded. The police precautions were very stringent. A space extending half a block from the hotel was cordoned by rows of mounted republican guards augmented by files of armed municipal guards. Over the entire route from the station to the hotel enthusiastic cries greeted Mr. Kruger. Short after about noon until there was a continuous roar of cheering. When the Boer president entered the cleared area in front of the hotel the demonstration was uproarious.

Kruger Acknowledges the Cheering. Mr. Kruger, bare-headed, bowed on all sides, while the air was rent with cries of "Vive Kruger!" "Vive les Boers!" Mr. Kruger quickly alighted from his carriage and entered the hotel, but the mass of spectators was not satisfied and the people shouted, yelled and clapped their hands in chorus until a window on the balcony was opened and Mr. Kruger appeared. Then hats were again thrown into the air and the shouting was resumed with renewed vigor. Handkerchiefs and flags were waved and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. The scene before the hotel continued for over an hour. A body of students, bearing flags, attempted to march past, the hotel, but were stopped. Nothing daunted, the students broke into cries and songs until Mr. Kruger again appeared in response to their demonstration, after which he retired for lunch.

Through all this fervid welcome the anti-British sentiment did not appear. The cries were confined to plaudits of Mr. Kruger and the Boers. If there were any shouts opposed to Great Britain they were not heard in the general tumult. So direct had been the warnings of the prefect of police, M. Peupin, to cause the arrest of persons raising anti-British shouts and so omnipresent were the police that any person desiring to give utterance to anti-British sentiments would hardly have dared to do so.

Flowers Thrown at Kruger. Along the route flowers were thrown into Mr. Kruger's landau and women tossed their handkerchiefs in his direction. Mr. Kruger smiled and regarded with curiosity the balconies and roofs, which were alive with people.

On his arrival at the Hotel Scribe Mr. Kruger was greeted on the threshold with the hymn, sung by the children of the Transvaal consulate, to which Mr. Kruger listened with tears in his eyes.

Reception at the Elysee. Just before four o'clock a gala landau from the Elysee palace was driven to the Hotel Scribe, and Mr. Kruger, his interpreter and M. Crozier proceeded to the Elysee, escorted by a strong detachment of cuirassiers. The scenes of enthusiasm of the morning were repeated. Mr. Kruger was received at the Elysee with semi-official ceremonies, such as were accorded to the sovereigns who visited the exposition. A detachment of infantry, with its standard and band, drawn up in the courtyard, rendered the honors. Both Mr. Kruger and President Loubet took a somewhat roundabout route from the hotel to the Elysee in order to avoid passing the British embassy, which is situated upon the direct road. Special precautions had been taken to protect the building, the gates of which were closed, and police and mounted guards formed a cordon extending some distance on either side of the embassy to provide against any hostile demonstration being made. President Loubet received Mr. Kruger in the hall of the ambassadors, where M. Delcasse, the minister of foreign affairs, was also awaiting him. The interview lasted five minutes, and had no political tinge. Mr. Kruger then returned to his hotel, with the same ceremonial.

Loubet at the Hotel. M. Loubet returned Mr. Kruger's visit at 4:30 p. m. The French president was warmly acclaimed during his drive to the Hotel Scribe, and during his stay at the hotel the crowds raised alternate shouts of "Vive Kruger!" and "Vive Loubet!" After President Loubet's departure Mr. Kruger withdrew to his own room and declined to see further visitors, even the officials of the municipal council, who were desirous of ascertaining the day on which he would accept a reception at the Hotel de Ville. Mr. Kruger dined with the members of his family at 6:30. He was very much fatigued and retired early.

Spends a Quiet Sunday. Paris, Nov. 26.—Mr. Kruger passed Sunday with his family at the Hotel Scribe, observing the Sabbath in accordance with the customs of his fatherland. His apartments were closed to visitors, and he remained with them, indulging in perfect rest. Although the boulevards were alive to a late hour Saturday night with merry-makers and singing songs, the Hotel Scribe was cordoned, and the revellers did not disturb his rest. The morning found him quite recovered from the fatigue. After an early breakfast he conferred with Dr. Leyds. There being no church of his own denomination in Paris, he held a private service in his apartments, surrounded by his entourage. Mr. Kruger read a portion of Scripture, and a member of his suite read a sermon prepared in advance.

Mr. Kruger will spend this morning in conferring with the Boer representatives. The afternoon will be devoted to receiving deputations and prominent people who have made appointments. No decision, it is understood, has been reached as to when Mr. Kruger will leave Paris. According to the latest information obtainable, he will remain here until Wednesday evening or Thursday morning. It is said that he will go directly to Holland, not stopping in Belgium, where he may go later on.

MURDER IS CHARGED.

Minneapolis Newspaper Man Arrested for Striking in Death a Young Millionaire.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 26.—Frank H. Hamilton, a Minneapolis newspaper man, is a prisoner at the Central police station with the charge of murder against him as the result of the stabbing to death of Leonard Day, a young millionaire society man of the city, at the West hotel, early Sunday morning. Hamilton, who has been in the custody of the detectives since the tragedy, was not formally placed under arrest until late Sunday afternoon, when the coroner's jury returned a verdict holding him responsible for the death of young Day. The tragedy took place in the billiard room of the West hotel at two o'clock in the morning, after a quarrel over a woman, participated in by Hamilton, Day and a number of other prominent men. All had been drinking to a considerable extent.

Heads Stare Huddled. Deloit, Wis., Nov. 26.—Port, Bailey & Co.'s dry goods store was robbed Saturday night of silks and gloves to the value of $1250. This is the second robbery of the same kind and same manner the firm has suffered in the last six months.

Arms from Germany. Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 26.—The Venezuelan government has received from Germany 10,000 Mauser rifles and 3,000,000 cartridges.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS.

Mr. McKinley at Union League Banquet in Philadelphia.

SOME EXTRACTS FROM HIS ADDRESS

He Discusses Results of the Election and Declares That the Republic Is Not in Danger of Imperialism.

Philadelphia, Nov. 26.—President McKinley, in a speech before the Union League club of this city Saturday evening, paid a glowing tribute to the silent forces that brought about a republican victory in the recent election. During his speech, which was brief, he also announced the principles for which a great majority of the voters had declared themselves, and expressed the hope that the administration might meet the expectations of the people, who had honored it with a return to power.

The occasion was "founders' day" at the Union League club, and the gathering included many notable men from New York, Washington and leading cities in Pennsylvania. Numerous speeches were made during the evening, and those second in importance to that of the president were by Gov. Roosevelt and Senators Lodge and Wolcott.

The President's Speech. When the president arose to speak he was greeted with long-continued applause. When quiet had been restored he spoke in part as follows:

"We are always in danger of exaggeration on an occasion of exultation over a political victory, and while the result is mainly due to the efforts of our splendid party, there is sometimes a tendency to give too little credit to other forces, which, silent though they may have been, were none the less potential.

"We must not withhold generous acknowledgment from that great body of our citizens, who, belonging to another party, powerfully assisted in the achievement of the result which you celebrate tonight; nor from that other large body, former members of our own party, who, with honesty of purpose, separated from us a few years ago on financial issues, have now returned and are here again to stay.

Glves Credit to Labor. "Nor is any accounting for the victory either just or accurate which leaves out of the calculation the almost unbroken column of labor engaged in mechanics and agriculture, which rejected the false doctrine of class distinction as having no place in this republic, and which rebuked those teachings which would destroy the faith of American manhood in American character and American institutions. The business men in every part of the country, typified by this great organization, were a mighty factor in the recent contest. And may we not also ascribe much to the influence of the home, with its affluence? In any previous election, was it greater, or in any did the counsels of the fireside determine more largely the vote of the electors?"

"Nothing in government can be more impressive than a national election, where the people delegate their power and invest their constitutional agents with authority to execute their behests. The very character of the transaction clothes it with solemnity. It is serious business. Its issues are always momentous. What a lesson in self-government it teaches! Six million voters on the same day, throughout every section of the United States, depositing their mandate and recording their will. Here by the people in their own communities, and in the very precincts of the home, under the supervision of their fellow citizens and chosen officials, and to insure its freedom and independence, the ballot a secret for that sacred trust should ever attempt to divert the will of the sovereign people or tamper with the sanctity of their ballots.

Election Was Decisive.

"Some disappointments follow all elections; but all men rejoice when an election is so decisive as to admit of neither dispute nor contest. The value of a national victory can only be rightly measured and appreciated by what it averts as well as by what it accomplishes. It is fortunate for the party in power if it understands the true meaning of the result. Those charged by the people with administration and legislation are required to interpret as well as to execute the public will, and its faithful interpretation is essential to its faithful execution.

"We cannot overestimate the great importance and the far-reaching consequences of the electoral contest which ended on the 6th of November. It has to me no personal phase. It is not the triumph of an individual, nor altogether of a party, but an emphatic declaration by the people of what they believe and would have maintained in government. A great variety of subjects was presented and discussed in the progress of the campaign. We may differ as to the extent of the influence of the several issues involved, but we are all agreed as to certain things which it settled.

"It records the unquestioned indorsement of the gold standard, industrial independence, broader markets, commercial expansion, reciprocal trade, the open door in China, the inviolability of public faith, the independence and authority of the judiciary, and peace and beneficent government under American sovereignty in the Philippines. American credit remains unimpaired, the honor of American arms unassailed and the obligations of a righteous war and treaty of peace unrepudiated.

Must Deserve Confidence.

"The republican party has placed upon it tremendous responsibilities. No party could ask for a higher expression of confidence. It is a great thing to have this confidence; it will be a greater thing to deserve and hold it. To this party are committed the destinies of the whole American people. Who will say they are unequal to it?"

No Danger from Empire.

"Liberty has not lost, but gained in strength. The structure of the fathers stands secure upon the foundations on which they raised it, and to-day, as it has been in the years past, and as it will be in the years to come, the government of the people, by the people and for the people."

"Be not disturbed; there is no danger from empire; there is no fear for the republic."

At the conclusion of the dinner the president held a reception, when the members of the Union League club individually paid their respects to him. At midnight the president left for Washington.

AN AMERICAN VICTORY.

Porter and Geronimo, the Strongest Position in Island of Luzon, Captured.

Manila, Nov. 26.—The fortress of the insurgent chief Geronimo, at Pinaran, which the insurgents boasted was impregnable, was taken and destroyed Thursday afternoon by a picked force of the Forty-second and Twenty-seventh infantry and troop (C) of the Fourth cavalry, under Col. Thompson. Geronimo and most of the rebels escaped. The leader has long harassed the Twenty-seventh infantry, operating in the vicinity of San Mateo, Montalban and Novalesch. He was finally located at Pinaran, 35 miles north of Manila. His position was considered the strongest in Luzon. It was a stone fortress surrounding a steep hill surrounded by canyons. The Spanish forces lost heavily in attempting to take it.

Col. Thompson mobilized 1,000 men at Montalban. The attack was made upon four sides, the main body under Maj. Carey, of the Forty-second, advancing from the south; Capt. Atkinson, of the Twenty-seventh, from the east; Capt. Castel, of the Twenty-seventh, from the west, and Capt. Sloan, of the Twenty-seventh, from the north. The assaults were steep and the men climbed them by grasping the shrubbery. It was impossible for the eastern column to reach the summit, but the others arrived after three or four hours' climbing, under fire from the fortress and the hillside intrenchments. The enemy's force, numbering several hundred, fled before the attackers reached the top. The Americans destroyed 1,000 insurgent uniforms, scores of buildings and large quantities of supplies, and seized a barrel full of documents.

Private Hart, of the Twenty-seventh, and Private Koppner, of the Forty-second, and two native scouts were killed and 12 of the attacking force were wounded. The insurgent casualties could not be ascertained.

Manila, Nov. 26.—Particulars have just been received from Hilo of the battle October 20 at Hugason, island of Lanai, when 200 men and 50 riflesmen attacked the Americans, who lost three killed—Lieut. H. M. Koonz, Sergt. Kitchen and Corp. Burns, all of company F, Forty-fourth infantry. It appears that Corp. Burns was holed while reconnoitering and Lieut. Koonz and Sergt. Kitchen were pierced by spears while going to relieve an outpost. When the garrison attacked the rebels 49 of the latter were killed. None of the other parties of attacking natives made much of a stand, and the insurgents lost 102 killed, all told.

FOUND DEAD.

Mystery Shrouds the Ending of the Lives of Two Brothers in Peru. Ind-Fool Play Suspected.

Peru, Ind., Nov. 26.—The decomposed bodies of Jerry and Patrick Holland, brothers, aged 62 and 56 years, respectively, were found in their house Sunday. No marks of violence were evident, and, as the men, when last seen, eight or ten days ago, were drinking, it is believed they were drugged, the poison taking effect soon after they reached their home. The brothers were noted for their affection for each other, and their appearance and actions were so nearly exactly alike that they were generally known as "the two Dromios." They were light-hearted and cheerful in disposition, and the theory of suicide is not entertained. Jerry possessed considerable property, while Patrick was comparatively poor. An investigation, to be made by the coroner, is expected to shed some light upon the mystery.

Will Ship Much Coal.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 26.—The Ohio river at the dam is 8.4 feet and rising rapidly. By tonight 14 feet or more is expected, and 5,000,000 bushels of coal will be shipped to southern points. The Consolidated Coal company has arranged for every boat in the port, 25 in number, to go on this rise, and the boats coming up with empties will be returned as rapidly as possible until the 20,000,000 bushels now loaded are on their way south.

Senator Davis' Condition.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 26.—According to reports from Senator Davis' house, the patient passed a fairly comfortable day. His injured foot was dressed and he bore the operation very well. His delirium was a trifle less acute and he was able to secure some sleep. The wound in his foot appears to be healing nicely. The kidney trouble, however, does not yield to treatment. Towards evening the senator became restless again, and Dr. Stone was called to the house.

Fire in Rochester.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 26.—Fire Sunday afternoon wrecked the plant of the Citizens' Light and Power company and destroyed the Washington flour mills, both situated at the corner of Factory and Mill streets, causing a loss estimated at about $175,000; partly covered by insurance.

Football Scores.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Scores of the principal football games on Saturday: Yale, 25; Harvard, 0. Wisconsin, 27; Illinois, 0. Michigan, 0; Ohio State, 0. Cornell, 42; Vermont, 0. Lafayette, 15; Lehigh, 0. Brown, 6; Syracuse, 6.

Found in a Well.

Pana, Ill., Nov. 26.—A skeleton has been found in a well on the Drunot farm. The well is the same one in which Jane Drunot's body was found last April.

Envoys at Peking Agree on a Preliminary Treaty.

AWAIT ACCEPTANCE BY THE POWERS

Its Terms Not Made Public—London Newspapers Express Little Confidence That This Will Hasten Peace Negotiations.

Peking, Saturday, Nov. 24.—The diplomatic body held a final meeting this morning and agreed upon the terms of the preliminary treaty. Nothing now remains except to secure the approval of the respective governments before definite negotiations with the Chinese peace commissioners are begun. The precise terms of the settlement have not yet been made public here; but it is believed outside the diplomatic corps that the main points are in substantial agreement with those contained in the French note to the powers, namely, punishment for the guilty, indemnity to governments and individuals, retention of strong legation guards and the occupation of certain places between Peking and Taku.

The News in London.

London, Nov. 26.—Mild satisfaction is expressed in the London papers at the news that the diplomats in Peking have arrived at a preliminary understanding, but no great confidence seems to be felt that any real step has been made in the endless negotiations. It is recognized that there is little for Germany to do but to concede, wherever the United States and Russia agree. The Standard says: "It is hardly possible for Germany to hold out, deeply offended as she is, if the United States, Russia, France and Japan are disposed to moderation. Our Berlin correspondent believes that Germany is prepared to waive the death penalty."

Want Extension of Legation Area.

London, Nov. 26.—"The foreign envoys have agreed to demand," says a special dispatch from Peking, "an extension of the legation area so as to embrace everything from the Ha-Tu-Men gate to the Tien-Men gate, between the walls of the Imperial and Tartar cities, a strip a mile long and a third of a mile wide. M. de Giers, Russian minister, has declined to yield on the indemnity question, and some kind of a verbal compromise has been arranged."

THE CZAR'S ILLNESS.

Strong Intimation That the Real Condition of Russia's Ruler Is Being Concealed.

Berlin, Nov. 26.—The following special dispatch dated St. Petersburg, November 25, 2:19 a. m., has been received here: "It is persistently rumored in St. Petersburg that the condition of Emperor Nicholas is critical. Well informed people here declare that the disease has made far greater progress than the czar's physicians have publicly admitted. A fatal issue is now greatly feared."

St. Petersburg, Nov. 26.—From three sources of information directly connected with as many ministries of state it has been ascertained that imperial officers are becoming extremely pessimistic regarding the condition of Emperor Nicholas and assert that the Livadia bulletins conceal the gravity of his illness. In spite of the notorious ease with which an alarmist rumor can be circulated in the Russian capital, many good judges believe that the chances of the czar's recovery are diminishing. One report says that the emperor, in addition to typhoid fever, with pectoral complications, has brain fever, the result of the blow he received from a fanatical policeman during his tour in Japan; and it is even asserted in some quarters that trepanning has become necessary.

Although the imperial ministers have assumed wider powers in administration since his majesty's illness began, the whole machinery of government is affected by his disability, and many departments are almost at a standstill.

London, Nov. 26.—While the latest bulletin regarding the czar's condition is much less favorable than its predecessors, there is nothing as yet to confirm alarming rumors. Queen Victoria daily receives a telegram from the czarina and it is understood that no exceptional anxiety is yet displayed.

Vote of Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, Nov. 26.—A special to the Sentinel from Madison says the official canvass of the vote of the state of Wisconsin in the election shows the count to be as follows: For President, Bryan, 159,291; Woolley, 10,646; McKinley, 265,293; Lebs, 7,941; Malone, 231; showing McKinley's plurality to be 106,002. For governor, Bohmrich (dem.), 160,674; Smith (pro.), 2,712; LaFollette (rep.), 261,420; Tuttle (social dem.), 6,237; Wilke (social labor), 204; showing LaFollette's plurality to be 102,746.

Fatal Explosion.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 26.—While lighting one from steamer Ellwood, in Mud Lake early Sunday morning, the forward boiler on the lighter Stewart exploded, killing three men and severely injuring seven others.

Census Returns.

Washington, Nov. 26.—The population of the state of Kansas, as officially announced Saturday, is 1,470,495, as against 1,427,096 in 1890; an increase of 43,399, or 3 per cent. Nevada, 42,235, against 43,761 in 1890; a decrease of 3,526, or 7.4 per cent.

ROYALISTS ON TOP.

Defeat Both Republicans and Democrats in Hawaii.

Robert W. Wilcox, Elected Delegate to Congress, an Ardent Sympathizer with the Deposed Queen Liliuokalani.

Hawaii's delegate to congress, Robert W. Wilcox, is an ardent friend of ex-Queen Liliuokalani, who did all in her power to aid his election as a representative of the native element in the islands as opposed to the whites. Wilcox was born February 15, 1853, at Maui. His father was William S. Wilcox, a sea captain, of Newport, R. I., and his mother a native woman named Kalua. The father is still living on Maui and is 85 years of age. Robert Wilcox was educated at the Haleakala boarding school on Maui, and when 25 years old was elected to the legislature from Wallula district. The congress-man-elect was one of a party sent by King Kalakaua to Italy to study in the schools there. With Caesar C. Moore, Hawaiian minister of foreign affairs, who is now in Washington, Wilcox went to Turin, Italy, where he entered a military school. He remained there till 1897.

Wilcox was married in Italy to Princess Victoria Colonna Di Stigliana, daughter of Baron Lorenzo Sobrero. In the revolution of July, 1897, when the new constitution under Kalakaua was promulgated, Wilcox took a leading part, and he is also credited with having been a leading spirit in the unsuccessful revolution which was for the purpose of placing Liliuokalani on the throne before the death of Kalakaua. After the overthrow of the queen he was in command of the natives, who for a time seemed likely to give battle to the revolutionists. In the revolution of 1895, when an attempt was made to restore Queen Liliuokalani, he was again a leader. This time he was arrested and imprisoned for about a year, after which he was pardoned by President (now governor) Dole.

The result of the election produced much depression among all whites, as Wilcox was strongly opposed by republicans and democrats alike. His campaign was an anti-white canvass, with promises on the part of some of his campaign workers that if he were elected Queen Liliuokalani would be replaced on the throne. The result of the vote shows the native bitterness over annexation to be still alive.

The republicans carried Honolulu and the island of Oahu for Hon. Samuel Parker by 219 plurality. The democratic candidate, Prince David Kawananakoa, received only about one-third as many votes as Parker. It is reported that ex-Queen Liliuokalani secretly threw her influence to Wilcox. There is much bitterness against her among the democrats, who hoped that, even if they did not elect their man, they would at least divide the native vote that Wilcox would be behind Parker.

The independent native party has carried the house of representatives by a large majority. They will have 14 members of the house, with nine republicans and six independents and democrats. In the senate there will be seven republicans, eight independents, and one democrat. With the independents in control a lively session is expected, as they are against the ruling regime.

It is likely, as a result of the election, that congress will be asked to establish some limitations upon the voting privilege. Many of the whites want a property qualification for voters. It is argued that in voting upon a simple color line many of the natives have shown themselves unfit for universal suffrage.

It is said that Samuel Parker will go to Washington in any event, and that though he will have no official title, he will look after Hawaiian interests there.

A Delight to Housewives.

A new needle, which must be a delight to housewives, has been invented in Germany. It has a prolongation behind the eye of smaller diameter than the bored part of the needle, with grooves in it to receive the thread. The object of it is to facilitate the passing of the needle through the holes in buttons, when sewing them on. The thread lies in the grooves, and hence the needle passes much more easily and rapidly.

He Leads a Struggling Life.

Job Castlett, of Edwardsville, Pa., is a busy man. Until recently he held six offices in the town. He was burgess, janitor of the town hall, keeper of the lockup, town clerk, driver of the borough team and street commissioner. The court thought he was entirely too busy, and removed him as burgess, but the other five positions he still fills.

BIG RAILROAD DEAL.

Northern Pacific About to Pass Under the Control of Its Old Rival, the Great Northern.

The New York Mail and Express recently printed the following:
"Two gigantic railroad deals, involving the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Union Pacific on the one hand and the Atchafalpa and Southern Pacific systems on the other, have just been completed and will shortly be announced. This statement is officially made by one of the highest executive officials of the Northern Pacific railway, who admits his company is about to pass under the control of the Great Northern."

"President Hill, of the Great Northern, is acting in close harmony with J. Pierpont Morgan, who is the chief factor in the management of the Northern Pacific, and it is for the purpose of putting through the big combination that the Northern Pacific voting trust has been dissolved.

"There is to be no consolidation or leasing of one property to another, for Messrs. Hill and Morgan recognize that the laws of certain western states would not permit of such a thing."

"Mr. Morgan and Mr. Hill, acting with the Deutsche bank of Berlin, which has always been a large owner of Northern Pacific stock, have pooled their interests in Northern Pacific and have recently greatly added to their holdings of its shares until they now have a majority in the great pool. This is to be turned over to the Great Northern, giving the latter control of its rival."

"The Great Northern, it is believed, will pay for this huge block of Northern Pacific stock by the issue of new Great Northern common stock or by means of a new security yet to be determined."

"Mr. Hill and several of his friends will enter the directory of the Northern Pacific, some of Mr. Morgan's associates in the Northern Pacific will be elected directors in the Great Northern, and Union Pacific interests will also have representatives in the boards of the other two northern railroads."

"It is in furtherance of this colossal deal that Mr. Hill has decided to relinquish the presidency of the Great Northern to his son-in-law, Samuel Hill, who is now general manager of the company. Mr. Hill will remain as chairman of the board of directors."

A BEAUTIFUL CHURCH.

Savannah's New Cathedral One of the Finest Gothic Edifices in the Country.

The most important church service held in the United States for many years was the recent dedication by Most Rev. Sebastian Martinelli, archbishop of Ephesus and papal delegate to the United States, of the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist at Savannah, Ga. It attracted to the city the most distinguished list of Catholic prelates that ever visited that city at one time.

The cathedral spires rise to a height of 218 feet. The transept has a depth of 110 feet and is a little more than 80 feet in width. The floor is of marble and the seating capacity is 1,500. The old cathedral was destroyed by fire on February 6, 1893. The walls were left standing and the new cathedral has been built directly on the site and along the architectural lines of the old. The building is Gothic in design. It is also fireproof and cost between $150,000 and $200,000. The main altar, which is entirely of marble, is a gift from the priests of the United States to the memory of the late Rev. Bishop Thomas A. Becker, who was in control of the diocese at the time of the destruction of the church by fire. There are other gifts from members of the cathedral that add greatly to the beauty of the interior.

THE USEFUL ANGORA.

Its Value Is Just Beginning to Be Appreciated Here.

Many Western Farmers Are Now Breeding These Charming Goats to Clear Land and for Milk, Hair and Hide.

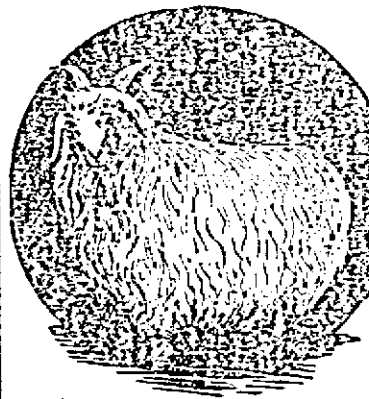

The problem of clearing the land from which trees have been removed and of exterminating the persistent growth of shrubbery has been solved by a Texas farmer, whose chief aid in the enterprise is the goat. A man who has studied the subject, speaking of the work done by the browsing goat, said that the animal shows his generosity by giving his relation, the sheep, an equal share of the pasture, and magnanimously turns over to the sheep all the rich and succulent grasses. The goat also acts as the protector of the sheep.

"We have never given the goat his just deserts," said the expert, "and have failed to give him credit for his moral worth and his physical usefulness. In Roquefort, France, the dairy-men combine the milk of the sheep and of the goat in making the most delicious cheese, which we import at four times the price of our own dairy cheese, however excellent. We also import millions of kidskins, tanned and in French gloves, for both of which we pay high prices, to the detriment of home industries."

Near Kansas City a man has taken advantage of the Texan's discovery and has started to clear up with Angora goats a thousand acres of brush-wood.

The value of the goat seems to be appreciated by the residents of the western states, a fact which was demonstrated at the fair of the American Angora association, which took place last month in Kansas City. About 1,000 goats were exhibited. They came from Kansas, Iowa, Texas, Missouri and New Mexico, and among them were some of the finest specimens in the country. Many people who visited the fair had never seen an Angora goat before, and all listened attentively to the papers which were read on the subject of the dairy animal and its habits, traits and peculiarities.

One breeder from Missouri said that the presence of the goats in his pastures afforded him ample compensation for his investment in a flock of 600 or 700. "Under the foot of the Angora," he said, "a rich carpet of blue grass has already covered what before was a bare, forbidding land surface, marred by many clumps of briars and bushy growths." These had places had been done away by the goats, and the pastures had become picnic grounds. This was only the poetry of the industry, but other speakers were equally enthusiastic in discussing the economic points. It was asserted that the Angora goat was immune from tuberculosis, that its milk was consequently pure, and that the flesh as a food article was wholesome, and that Angora venison was a delicious food. Other points of which the breeders make much are the Angora hair, which is coming more into demand every year, and the tanned pelt, which is a good substitute for buckskin.

A Poor Town for Lovers.

A case which came before the Milan police court the other day amusingly illustrates the maxim "other times, other manners." There is among the city statutes a law rigorously prohibiting all kisses or other amatory demonstrations in public places as being contrary to morals. This statute, though dating from the days of the Sforzas, is still so strictly enforced that only the other day a pair of perfectly respectable lovers were taken before the tribunal for merely exchanging an embrace in a quiet corner of the park when they thought nobody was looking. Upon this case a city Solomon adjudged that though kissing under such circumstances could not be considered contrary to morals, it was not consistent with the ideals of advanced civilization as to decorum. A fine of 12 shillings was inflicted.

A Strange Medical Case.
A curious case has occurred in one of the Paris hospitals, which is exciting much comment in medical circles. Some time ago a woman named Legros, 35 years of age, was found lying in a room in a state of insensibility and absolutely rigid. She was removed by the police to the hospital, where for three weeks she remained in the same state. The doctors then decided that she was dead, and had been so since she was found, the preservation of her body being due to the amount of alcohol she had imbibed.

HAS STRANGE POWERS.

Harvard Youth Stands Still, Yet Keeps Several Strong Men from Lifting Him.

Can you tell why William H. Mack, an 18-year-old, 140-pound Harvard freshman, can stand still and yet keep several strong men from lifting him? His strange powers have made him a curiosity among his fellow students, and have puzzled prominent scientists in Europe and America. The Royal Medical society of England could not tell the source of his ability. Prof. Virchow, dean of the University of Berlin, decided after three weeks' study of him, that he had "a force of nerve resistance."

One day, in fun, a Harvard man tried to lift Mack off his feet. The boy put one hand on the man's neck near the spinal cord, pressed the other against the pulse of one wrist and stuck to the ground like a post. Then other men, including the different football players and Coaches, the strong man of the university, tried and failed. Afterward Mack stood a vaulting-pole upright on the ground, steadied it between his flat palms and invited several heavy men to lift it or push it over in any direction. They took hold of the pole, he rubbed his palms briskly over their knuckles a few seconds, pressed his hands against the pole again and they were unable to move it.

One explanation of the young man's ability, says the Little Chronicle, is that a hypnotic current passes from his hands and weakens the nerve centers in his opponent's body so that the latter has little strength. Mack had his power 15 years ago, but when a child it was not nearly so powerful as now. He does not understand it himself.

REV. CAMPBELL MORGAN.

English Preacher Who Will Succeed the Late Dwight L. Moody at Northfield, Mass.

Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, pastor of the New Court Congregational chapel, London, England, has accepted a call to the pastorate at Northfield, Mass., left vacant by the death of Dwight L. Moody. Rev. Mr. Morgan has preached a number of times in Northfield and in Chicago, and is not unknown to the late D. L. Moody's congregation. His pulpit eloquence is more of the persuasive than of the trenchant kind. His voice is powerful and well modulated, and reaches the distant parts of the church without effort. He is fluent of speech and energetic in his gestures. He was born in Tetbury, Gloucestershire, England, on December 9, 1861. His father was a Baptist minister and his mother the daughter of a Baptist deacon. He was educated mainly at Cheltenham, from which place, at the age of 20, he passed to a mastership in the Jewish Collegiate school, Birmingham. He abandoned this calling for the work of an evangelist, and in 1889 accepted a call to the pastorate of the Congregational church in Stone, Staffordshire. In 1893 he took charge of the Westminster Road Congregational church at Birchfield, near Birmingham, and in February, 1897, he accepted a call to the New Court Congregational church, which he now leaves. He has published several books, the best known of which are "The True Estimate of Life," "Malaichi's Message for the Men of To-Day," "Discipleship," "The Hidden Years at Nazareth," and "God's Methods with Man."

Judgment Partly in Error.

After his return to London from his first tour of the United States, Matthew Arnold, visited old Mrs. Proctor, widow of the poet, "Harry Cornwall," and mother of Adelaide Proctor. Mrs. Proctor, who was then 89 years old, in giving Mr. Arnold a cup of tea, asked him: "And what did they say about you in America?" "Well," said the literary autocrat, "they said I was comely, and they said my clothes did not fit me." "Well, now," said the old lady, "I think they were mistaken as to the clothes."

WISCONSIN STATE NEWS.

A Novel Invention.
C. W. Staefler is suing the Menasha Woolenware company at Appleton to recover damages for the death of his wife's first husband. Mrs. Staefler was formerly the wife of one Schmidt, who was killed accidentally in the Menasha company's works. She began suit for damages, but married Staefler and died before the case was decided. Now Staefler, claiming to have inherited the cause of action, is prosecuting the suit that his wife began. The case is said to be without precedent in the United States.

A Close Call.
Passengers on a train standing at the station in Deloit had a narrow escape from death. A heavy west-bound freight, with air brakes refusing to work, came thundering down a steep grade at a rate of 40 miles an hour. The passengers were notified and scrambled madly out of the cars just as the freight crashed into the helpless passenger train, demolishing engine and cars. Four coaches and the baggage car were reduced to splinters and the freight engine was also wrecked.

A Valuable Relic.
A five-dollar bill issued according to an act of the continental congress in 1776 is a valuable relic in the hands of G. E. Palmer, of Oconomowoc. The bill, which measures 2 1/2 by 3 1/4 inches, was given to the present owner by his grandfather. The following words also appear on the face: "This bill entitles the bearer to receive five Spanish milled dollars, or the value thereof in gold or silver, according to a resolution of congress, passed at Philadelphia, February 17, 1776."

Many Hunters Killed.

The deer hunting season has closed and hereafter it will be safe for a man to walk through the woods of northern Wisconsin. During the 26 days of the hunting season there have been 12 men killed and 12 seriously wounded. There never was a time in the history of the state when there were so many deer and such a flood of amateur hunters. The result has been a large list of casualties.

Heir to Vest Fortune.

Frank Wardwell, a poor carpenter living in Milwaukee, believes he is one of the six rightful heirs to an estate at Chambray, France, worth no less than $12,000,000. The five other rightful heirs, according to Wardwell, are his brothers. A son of one of the brothers, who resides at Waterville, Me., is in Paris preparing to bring suit to establish the title of the American claimants to the property.

Found Dead.

W. W. Hodges, aged 52 years, a leading business man and a member of the city council and school board of Monroe, was found dead in his bed. He retired as well as usual the previous evening. Mr. Hodges was in business at Monroe for 20 years. His wife was in Madison, Neb., where she was called a few days ago by the death of her father.

Burned to Death.

An aged couple named Klotow, living on a farm a short distance from Spencer, were burned to death in their home, and circumstances surrounding the case have given rise to a suspicion that the fire was of incendiary origin. The district attorney and coroner were expected to investigate the matter.

SULTAN AGAIN REFUSES.

Positively Declines to Grant Exequatur to United States Consul at Harpoot.

Constantinople, Nov. 26.—United States Charge d'Affaires Griscom called upon Taffik Pasha, minister for foreign affairs, Friday to urge a settlement of the difficulty in relation to the granting of an exequatur to Dr. Thomas H. Norton, who some time ago was appointed by President McKinley to establish a consulate at Harpoot. The porte, however, is firm in its refusal to grant the request for an exequatur.

Washington, Nov. 26.—The Turkish authorities having refused to grant an exequatur to Dr. Thomas H. Norton to act as United States consul at Harpoot, the freedmen are former slaves retaliatory measures on the part of our government in the near future. The Turkish contention now is that they permitted a United States consulate to be established at Erzeroum under an implied understanding that the United States would abandon its claim to a consulate at Harpoot. That there was some shadow of foundation for this understanding is admitted; but it is still the purpose of the United States to establish this consulate because the British government has since been permitted to locate a consul at Harpoot and, under the favored nation clause of our treaty with Turkey, the United States government claims the same commercial privileges as Great Britain. There is, besides, a peculiarly potent reason for the presence of a United States representative at Harpoot, for at that point are located some of the most important and flourishing American missionary and educational interests in Turkey. Moreover, being located in the Armenian district, where so many outrages upon Christians have occurred, it is extremely desirable that our government should have some impartial and creditable representative to protect the interests of American citizens.

CAUGHT IN A GALE.

Coasting Steamer Founders Off Labrador—All on Board, Twenty-Five in Number, Perish.

Quebec, Can., Nov. 26.—Seven passengers and the crew of 19 on the iron coasting steamer St. Olaf were drowned Wednesday night in a wreck off the coast of Labrador in Seven Islands bay. Not a soul aboard was saved. The St. Olaf traded between here and Eskimo points on the Labrador coast, and carried government mails to the various points of that inhospitable territory. She was on her return from Eskimo points when wrecked. She passed Shedrake Wednesday afternoon. That afternoon there was a gale of east wind, with snow, in the gulf, and evidently it was in attempting to make the harbor of Seven Islands that she struck Route Island at the entrance of the bay. Saturday a number of bodies as well as a mail bag washed ashore there, and further investigation revealed on the rocks the boiler and part of the bow of the wrecked vessel. One of the bodies recovered is that of Miss Marie Page.

DAMAGE BY FLOODS.

High Water in the Rivers Will Cause Considerable Loss in the Ohio Valley.

Cincinnati, Nov. 26.—Floods are reported all along the Ohio valley. In almost the entire valley it has been raining since last Tuesday, and almost continuously since Friday. While no lives are reported lost the damage to property is considerable. The Licking river in Kentucky is very high and caused some damage on the Ohio side by its waters rushing across the Ohio channel and sweeping the Cincinnati landing. One of the bridges over the Licking river connecting Covington and Newport was swept away. The lumber yards, mills and shipping generally suffered great loss on the Ohio side the Great and the Little Miami rivers are both high and floods along the tributaries of the Ohio river are reported everywhere.

Heavy Loss by Fire.

Beatrice, Neb., Nov. 26.—Fire which broke out in the general merchandise store of Beale & Van Arsdale shortly before noon Sunday totally destroyed the brick block in which it was located, together with stocks involving a total loss of $250,000, of which falls on Beale & Van Arsdale, who carried insurance of but $20,000. Their store was the largest in the city and was heavily stocked. The other losses run from $200 to $500.

A Negroes Killed.

Baldwin, L. I., Nov. 26.—Augusta Boyd, a colored woman, was hurled as if from a cannon by the Patchogue express and struck the depot, over 20 feet east of the Grand avenue crossing, so hard that the building will have to be fixed. She was instantly killed. The train was traveling nearly 60 miles an hour.

Hanged Himself.

Dysart, Ia., Nov. 26.—Stephen Crone, a well-to-do farmer living near town, suicided at four o'clock Sunday morning by hanging. He was 30 years of age and leaves a wife and one child. The cause of his rash act is attributed to domestic troubles and insanity.

More Troops Refused.

London, Nov. 26.—"We understand," says the Daily Express, "that Lord Roberts recently requested the government to send 20,000 regulars to South Africa to relieve the same number still in the field, but that his request was declined on the score of expense."

THE NEW NORTH.

RHINELANDER PRINTING CO.

GOV. SCOFFIELD'S RETIREMENT.

The Janesville Gazette pays a highly deserved compliment to Gov. Scofield, who has given the state an exceptionally good administration, noted for good common sense applied in practical ways for the benefit of the people. Governor Scofield will retire in January with a record of which any man might well be proud. The Gazette in speaking of his excellent administration, says:

"His administration has been not only clean and wholesome, but it has been marked by intelligence and a grasp of the business situation, not often displayed by a chief executive. With a quiet dignity that has always commanded respect, he has gone about his work with the same practical business methods that characterize his life. Finding a depleted treasury not fully recovered from democratic misrule, he had the courage to place facts fairly before the people, and they responded to his call, having full confidence in his integrity and ability. He leaves the office with a solvent treasury and with the finances of the state on a sound business basis.

"He possesses another quality not always prominent in officials, and that is backbone. He is a man of convictions and of positive character, and the solicitation of friends, or the persistence of a legislature, has never caused him to waver from a sense of justice as he understood it. His veto was a check to foolish and extravagant legislation at times when he stood between the law makers and the people.

"On questions of finance and state policy he has been clear and emphatic, and the people have profited by his intelligent and business like methods."

The secret of Governor Scofield's success is that he has had good advisers; advisers who have had his interests and the interests of the commonwealth at heart. The governor is not infallible. He has made mistakes, but they have been mistakes of the head and not of the heart.

OPPOSED TO "BLANK" BALLOT.

Editor Dawley of Antigo, comes out in a recent issue of his paper in a protest against the "blank" ballot and says that it is his hope that the legislators at the approaching session will repeal or so amend the election laws as to do away with the ballot now in use. He says "it is unsightly, unwieldy and inconvenient." We can heartily agree with Mr. Dawley and believe the ballot could be easily condensed but we loudly protest against a change in the system and believe it is about as near correct as we can get until that time we adopt the machine system, which is coming in the course of time. The Antigo editor in giving vent to his feelings, says: "It bewilders the voter, is expensive and unnecessarily large. To vote it is a burden, to read it is a task and to canvass it correctly and without a feeling of profanity is almost an impossibility." The system has been in vogue long enough and the experience of practical tests teaches us that the Australian system is not now bewildering to the voter of intelligence that God gave little geese. It is truly a little expensive, but the expense is nothing compared with the good results attained in the way of honest elections and fair counts. The Antigo gentleman shows his appreciation of the advance step in progress when he says: "The old fashioned ballot was more intelligible and better in every way." To relocate to the old system is not our wish and in our position we know we are with the great majority. The voter under the present system have the greatest freedom and the widest range in the selection of public officials, and the best of all, absolute secrecy of the ballot, contrary, as we hold, to the views of the Antigo editor.

ENTHUSIASM FOR KRUEGER.

Paul Krueger, former president of the South African republic, landed at Marseilles, France, on Wednesday of last week. Contrary to the opinion advanced by the press of this country, he was given a hearty welcome by the people of that city upon his entrance. The impression that the Boer statesman is to accept a compromise from the British government is without a doubt erroneous. He is still firm in his determination that his countrymen will fight for their freedom to the bitter end. The object of Mr. Krueger's visit to France seems to be a trifle mystifying to the inhabitants of all nations and there is a general speculation as to its significance. Not a few are of the impression that his departure from his native clime is to install aid in carrying on what he claims a warfare in the west of humanity. This seems to be the most reasonable belief to hold. It is apparent that the powers, France or any other nation will not listen to any appeal that might be made for intervention and it is well that they should not. There are two sides to the existing differences between England and the South African republic. The United States, it is to be hoped, will not mix up. Affairs there are not ours and we have already extended a sufficiency of sympathy for both participants in the strife.

A TRIUMPH OF CIVILIZATION.

Europe has responded to our people in the joy which they have evinced over the reelection of President McKinley. President Loubet, of the French republic, the day after the November election, wired to the President of the United States his congratulations in behalf of himself and of all France because the people of the United States had re-elected a President eminently worthy of the position which he occupies and affirming that the result would draw closer than ever the bonds of friendship between France and the United States. His words were emphatic and his expressions most cordial. Since then the Premier of the British ministry, at the Guild Hall dinner, uttered words which are so remarkable and so honorable to our country and the party which chose William McKinley that they will become historic. He crystallized in a few memorable words the result in the United States as "a triumph of civilization and commercial honor." A grander compliment could not have been rendered to the voters of our country.—Evening Wisconsin.

Holders of dairy products have realized handsome profits by the rise in prices since the reelection of President McKinley was accomplished two weeks ago, and if present conditions continue much longer there is practically no limit to the heights to which butter and eggs may rise prior to the holidays. Butter has been advanced three cents a pound during the past week, an advance of two cents being made the other day. Eggs have advanced four cents during the same period under the influence of a brisk demand, aided by light offerings of strictly fresh stock, the cold weather have placed a quetus on the laying capacity of the hens. The supply of fancy makes of butter is so small that dealers find it extremely difficult to fill orders, and no difficulty is experienced in disposing of all varieties since the scarcity of the best qualities became so pronounced.

Here is a little general information concerning the good work that is being performed by the life saving service. S. L. Kimball, general superintendent of the service, in his annual report to Secretary Gage says that at the close of the fiscal year the establishment embraces 299 stations, 58 being on the lakes. The number of disasters to documented vessels within the field of operations of the service during the year was 361. There were on board these vessels 2,635 persons, of whom 2,607 were saved and eighteen lost. The estimated value of the vessels involved in disaster was $8,127,500 and of their cargoes $1,312,620, making a total value of property imperiled $9,440,120. Of this amount $7,231,600 was saved, and $2,208,520 lost. The number of vessels totally lost was 61.

Last week witnessed the 100th anniversary of the meeting of the first Congress which assembled in Washington after the capital of the republic was transferred to that city from Philadelphia. The anniversary is to be elaborately celebrated at the national seat of government on the 12th of next month. The governors of all the states, as well as many other distinguished guests are to be present. In connection with the event there is a project for an enlargement of the executive mansion to a scale commensurate with the present features and grandeur of the country.

Scientific research has disclosed the fact that mosquitoes serve as the intermediate host for the parasite of yellow fever, and in districts where the germ abounds the hum of the mosquito may cause a cold chill to descend the spinal column of the who unfortunately possesses this up-to-date knowledge. O Lord, what next?

The incoming administration both state and national will be decidedly one-sided as regards political affiliations and the patronage must necessarily be distributed thinly over a very large surface. The ratio of applicants for places will be about 15 to 1.

Former Governor George W. Peck is to accept a position as editor of the humorous supplement to the Sunday edition of the New York World.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL.

Fred Heithel, a Young Man From Oscoda, Meets With Accident in Gilkey & Anson's Logging Camp.

Fred Heithel, young woodsman, met with fatal injuries Tuesday afternoon in the vicinity of Gilkey & Anson's logging camp on the Pelican river near Malvern. The young man died from the effects of the injuries Tuesday night. The body was brought to this city yesterday and taken to the undertaking rooms of F. A. Hildebrand. Owing to going to press unusually early, it is impossible for us to acquaint our readers with the details of the fatality, other than it is said that a limb of a tree fell on the victim. Heithel was twenty-eight years of age. His home was at Oscoda. He has relatives there, to whom the local authorities have telegraphed to ascertain what disposition shall be made of the body.

Oscar Slater, of Lac du Flambeau, was in the city Saturday for a short stay. Mr. Slater is one of the engineers for the Flambeau Lumber Co., and came down to remove his daughter from St. Mary's hospital, where she has been for the past two weeks receiving medical treatment. The father informed The New North representative that the young body was much improved in health.

The Ladies Aid society of the M. E. church will meet with Mrs. Dr. Kellie next Wednesday afternoon.

CHARITY BALL WILL BE GIVEN HERE BY THE ELKS.

FIRST EVENT OF THE KIND EVER GIVEN IN THE CITY—INITIATORY STEP TAKEN TUESDAY EVENING—SHOWS TRUE SPIRIT OF THE ORDER.

A society event will take place in this city on the 20th of December next that will eclipse all previous undertakings in that line. It will be given under the auspices of Rhinelander Lodge, No. 528, B. P. O. E., in the nature of a charity ball to be given at the Army hall. At a recent meeting of the lodge members, a committee was appointed to decide upon some manner of entertainment. A special meeting of the committee was held Monday evening at the office of Dr. T. H. Welch. Various suggestions were offered, but the charity ball suggestion met with the greatest favor and the initiatory steps were taken then and there.

This philanthropic move on the part of the Elks is in keeping with the precepts of that popular order and in accordance with the name it bears—Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. The ball is given for sweet charity's sake. In their efforts to lend assistance and comfort to the needy of our city, the Elks should have the hearty co-operation of every one in the city who may be blessed with means to permit of their enjoying the comforts of life. We should lay aside selfishness at least in this one instance and help the Elks in the noble cause and benevolent work they have started.

This will be the first charity ball ever given in the city and it is also to be given by our youngest secret order. Taking this into consideration, the members are to be congratulated. It shows the true spirit of the order. As a lodge, the members are not for gain, but ever stand ready to help and encourage the needy. Without a doubt the ball will be the most largely attended ever given in the city. It is expected that at least three hundred tickets will be sold. The members of the committee in charge have assurance that brother members will be in attendance from Wausau and Ashland, accompanied by their lady friends. Correspondence is now under way with leaders of several of the leading orchestras in the state and none but the best will be secured. Further details will be given as they are furnished by the lodge.

MOVE TO ESTABLISH RURAL FREE MAIL DELIVERY.

PROSPECTS FAVORABLE FOR A TRIAL OF THE SYSTEM IN ONEIDA COUNTY—A TWENTY-FIVE MILE ROUTE PROPOSED.

The prospects are very favorable for the establishment of a rural free mail delivery in Oneida county. Postmaster Parker is working to that end with determination and the chances are that he will soon be rewarded for his labors. He has been in correspondence with the postoffice department at Washington for some time and has received very encouraging letters. He has succeeded that far in his work that he has been instructed to circulate a petition among the farmers to be benefited by the delivery, which he will do just as soon as he is satisfied in his own mind the route that will be the most desirable, as far as good results are concerned.

The route that Mr. Parker thinks at the present time would be the best is as follows: To the Ames district, across bridge and back to the Lago school house, thence south to the Hack district and back to the city via the Barney Moran road. This route would be twenty-five miles long and would supply one hundred families in the rural districts daily with their mail. It will be a departure that would be heartily welcomed by those benefited.

It will be necessary to secure one hundred signatures to the petition in order to secure recognition from the postoffice department. Mr. Parker has no doubt as to securing the required number of signatures to the petition. After the circulation of the petition it will be necessary for Congressman Stewart to recommend the establishment of the route, which he no doubt will gladly do.

This new departure in the transportation of mail is being worked with success in all portions of the country and it is only a question of time when it will become general. If it is put in operation here it will be the first experiment in the extreme northern part of the state and quite an honor to Oneida county. Mr. Parker is worthy of commendation for his efforts in this progressive step and it is the wish of all that his efforts may meet with success.

PERRY CLARK RETURNS TO ALASKA GOLD FIELDS.

TO ENGAGE IN THE LOGGING BUSINESS IN THE FAR NORTH—RETAINS INTEREST IN CLAIM—WIFE WILL JOIN HIM IN THE SPRING.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Clark left last Tuesday morning for Sedro-Woolley, Wash. Mrs. Clark will remain there during the winter and Mr. Clark will return the first of January to the gold fields of Alaska. His partner, W. A. Andrews, of Wausau, will meet him at Seattle and together they will make the trip to the frozen north. In the spring, Mrs. Clark and Mrs. A. E. Orr, of Wausau, a sister of Mr. Andrews, will join the gentlemen and spend the summer in that far away country.

The gentlemen own a two-third interest in a claim ten miles from Dawson City. They have worked the claim ever since they landed in that country, two and a half years ago. Their claim, which is located on Bonanza creek, is thought to be a valuable one and the gentlemen expect to realize handsomely from the same in the course of time, although it is a difficult claim to operate.

Upon their return to Alaska, Messrs. Andrews and Clark will embark in a different line of business, although they will still retain their interest in the claim. Their return home was mainly for the purpose of getting a complete logging outfit and they will engage in the logging business. Mr. Clark is confident there is a "gold mine" in this business and proposes to give it a trial.

Mr. Clark has all the confidence in the world in the resources of the country in the frigid zone and is determined to make a success of the business venture in which he is about to engage. Perry's friends in this city are legion and everyone of them trust that he may return loaded down with the precious metal. There is no man The New North would rather see fortunate smile on than he.

THINGS TO BE ESPECIALLY THANKFUL FOR.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS OFFERED.

A few things to be especially grateful for this year:

That Bryanism is buried.
That the increase of free silver is past for at least a generation.
That Free-Trade will not bring disaster for at least four years.
That the whole American people are assured of employment and good wages for four years.
That Dick Croker will not make up the next cabinet.
That the Supreme Court will be undisturbed.
That there will still be "no class distinction in this fair land of ours."
That law and order will reign and mob rule and class hatred be avoided.
That the American farmer's home market will expand, as will the American manufacturer's world's market.
That wages will be higher and products cheaper.
That the Stars and Stripes will not be hauled down, but will wave very where for peace, progress and humanity.

That both houses of Congress are Republican.

That Kansas and Nebraska are back in the Republican fold.

That the whole Pacific coast unites with New England for protection and prosperity.

That Pettigrew has become petrified.

That Henderson will again preside over the House.

That Populism has been relegated to the rear.

That the South now has a glorious future.

That Bryan made so many speeches.

That he said: "Great is Tammany and Croker is its Prophet."

That there still was so much to be said.

That the last Thanksgiving of the century should be the most widely observed that we have ever known.

If you wish to have a real good time, attend the Maccabee dance at the Armory hall this evening. Squier's full orchestra will furnish the music. The Lady Maccabees will serve supper. It will be an evening of unusual rare jollity to those who attend.
The body of Mrs. O. G. Nelson, who died at Lac du Flambeau last Saturday, was brought to this city Tuesday for burial. Interment was in the Forest Home cemetery. The deceased was thirty-five years of age. We were unable to learn the cause of her demise.
The ladies of the Baptist church gave a sleigh ride and old fashioned candy pull at the poor farm last Saturday evening. Those who participated in the merriment of the evening met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Ward. Those who were present report a very pleasant time.
L. W. Hamel has been at Oshkosh during the past week. He is negotiating for the purchase of a barber shop in that city and may close a deal. Mr. Hamel recently sold the Rapids House barber shop, which he conducted here for nearly two years.
Chas. Carroll was arrested last Saturday evening by Officer Asmondson for breaking the shade over the electric light in front of the Louis liquor store. He was taken before Justice of the Peace Maron, who sentenced him to twenty days in the county jail.
Jas. Blackmer has been engaged as sawyer in the mill of the Jeffris Lumber company at Jeffris. He will remain there during the winter. The Jeffris people know a good thing, as Mr. Blackmer is considered one of the best sawyers in this section of the state.
The ladies of the St. Augustine's Guild will hold a "Coffee" at the home of Mrs. J. E. Johnston next Saturday afternoon, Dec. 1, from three till five o'clock. The small admission fee of ten cents will be charged. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.
Floyd R. Briggs and his excellent company of dramatic artists, will commence a three nights' engagement at the opera house Monday, Dec. 2nd, on which occasion they will present the modern musical comedy drama, "The Days of '98." Reserved seats now on sale at Cash Department store.
Roy Whitting was able to walk around the house last Friday for the first time since he was taken down with typhoid fever three months ago. He has had a long struggle of it and his many friends hope that he will suffer no relapse and may soon be able to circulate among them again.
The Liederkrantz hall was the scene of a very pleasant affair last Thursday evening. Dancing was enjoyed during the evening by the members of that order and a few of their invited friends. Refreshments were served during the evening. A very pleasant time is reported by all those in attendance.

Mrs. D. D. Carpenter is lying very ill suffering with typhoid fever. Her brother, W. H. Fields, of Stevens Point, arrived in the city last Monday morning, having been advised of the illness of his sister. At last accounts she was somewhat improved, but not over the danger line.
A very pleasant meeting of the Bon Ami club was held Monday evening at the home of Miss Gaybelle Thompson. The club consists of several of the young ladies of the city who have the mistaken idea that they can have a good time "callalone," and without the assistance of the young gentlemen. Girls, how can you do it?
One of our subscribers wishes to know the difference between a salary and wages. It is this: If a man is getting $1 a day for running a machine, laying brick on a wall or doing something that makes a white collar and cuffs uncomfortable, he is getting wages. If he sits at a desk and gets six dollars a week, has soft hands, wears white collar, cuffs and tie, he gets a salary.—Ex.
The members of the tax commission have filed their bill of expense with the circuit court. The total bill amounts to $142.11. Of this amount in the neighborhood of $7.50 is for estimating. There are items in the bill that members of the board feel is not right and they will enter a strong protest. The matter will be heard at Wausau on the 14th of December.
The delay of the south-bound passenger train last Friday was occasioned by the discovery of a case of small pox on the train at Hurley. The case containing the victim was quarantined at that city and the passengers therein held. The victim of that awful disease was from Ashland, where there are a number of cases.
Dr. W. Towns, of Fond du Lac, was in the city last Friday on his regular monthly visit. The doctor is a specialist in epileptic fits and is gaining an enviable reputation. The New North acknowledges a pleasant call from Mr. Towns, who is an affable gentleman, whom it is a pleasure to meet.
A large delegation of the Members of Cohasset Tent, K. O. T. They come with a view of having a good time and everything possible will be done to not disappoint them.
Chas. E. Crusoe has returned from Chicago, where he spent a week or more visiting the markets and purchasing goods for the holiday trade. Mr. Crusoe says he has made provision for an exceptionally large Christmas trade and will be able to supply the wants of his trade. Their stock will consist of a large display of toys.
Some enterprising person could find a profitable business in starting a skating rink in Rhinelander this winter. There are enough young people in the city who enjoy that invigorating sport enough to patronize it liberally. Enquiries are not a few as to whether or not we are to have a rink here this winter. Give the young people a rink by all means.

Several of the local members of the I. O. E. lodge are planning on attending the annual ball by their brother members at Wausau on the 25th of next month. A delegation of about twenty will also go to Ashland on the 4th of next month to witness the dedication of the Elk's new hall in that city. Both events mean a good time, as that is what they go after and are never disappointed.
We have sufficient reason to give thanks this year. Everybody has plenty to eat, plenty to wear, a place to sleep and money in the bank. Is this not sufficient reason to give thanks to the Provider for the universe. Before seating yourself at the festive board today, just glance about and ascertain if any are suffering for the bare necessities of life. If so, let them share with you in the store of good things you may have.
The Maccabees have made elaborate arrangements for their ball to be given at the Armory this evening. It will be one of the great social events of the season and everyone who enjoys tripping the light fantastic should make it a point to be in attendance. Squier's re-organized orchestra will furnish the music and it will be unusually good. New members have been added to this already strong musical organization. Some of the very latest music will be played. During the evening the Lady Maccabees will serve supper. This all happens tonight and if you miss it, you will miss a treat.
Mr. Pierre Returns from East.
A. S. Pierce returned Monday morning from Boston, where he had been for a couple of weeks. He was to have been absent for a month, but received word of the accident which befel his aunt, Miss S. M. Becker, who had the misfortune last week to break an arm by reason of a fall. Mr. Pierce reports a profitable trip and that he disposed of lots of lumber at good prices. He says the business conditions are much improved since the election of McKinley. Mr. Pierce was in the east a few weeks before election and at that time the lumber business was almost at a standstill. This is an evidence of the good judgment of the American voters. Mr. Pierce feels greatly encouraged and anticipates a still market with bright prospects for the future in the lumber business.

"I am so nervous, there is not a well inch in my whole body. I am so weak at my stomach and have indigestion horribly, and palpitation of the heart, and I am losing flesh. This headache and backache nearly kills me, and yesterday I nearly had hysterics; there is a weight in the lower part of my bowels bearing down all the time, and pains in my groins and thighs; I cannot sleep, walk, or sit, and I believe I am diseased all over; no one ever suffered as I do."

toms, and no woman should allow herself to reach such a perfection of misery when there is absolutely no need of it. The subject of our portrait in this sketch, Mrs. Williams of Englishtown, N.J., has been entirely cured of such illness and misery by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and the guiding advice of Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass.

No other medicine has such a record for absolute cures, and no other medicine is "just as good." Women who want a cure should insist upon getting Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when they ask for it at a store. Anyway, write a letter to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and tell her all your troubles. Her advice is free.

DRESSED BIRDS ARE DEAD.

The Needed Lesson That Was Given a Fault Finding Poultry Dealer.

During last Thanksgiving week a poultryman of the northwest sent several barrels of fat dressed turkeys to a certain commission merchant, who is an extremely "close buyer" and never fails when he receives a consignment to claim an allowance for something alleged to have spoiled on the way. Heretofore, says the San Francisco Argonaut, he had dealt exclusively in live fowls, and probably the correspondence clerk got things mixed. At any rate the shipper was astonished to receive a letter by return mail about a following:

"Dear Sir: We regret to advise you that four of the turkeys in your consignment of November reached here dead. Please make deduction for same and return correct amount. Yours truly,"

The poultryman communed with himself and decided that

"Dear Sir: I am sorry to say I find it impossible to make the concession requested. I have established a rule requiring all customers who desire live dressed turkeys to notify us in advance, so we can send them in heated cars. Turkeys without feathers and sinews are liable to catch cold if shipped in the ordinary manner. The mortality among dressed turkeys was very large this year. Yours mortally."

HELPED THE CHIEF.

How a Loyal Engineer Did His Brother's Great Service.

Meadville, Pa., Nov. 26, 1900.—(Special.)—The Loyalty of the Members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is proverbial. A circumstance occurred in this city some days ago, which emphasizes this feeling.

Frank J. Zeller is Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers No. 143. He is extremely popular among his fellow railway men, and one of the best known Engineers running out of Meadville. When the announcement was made a short time ago that Frank was pretty sick, it caused a great deal of regret among the boys. Soon he was missed from his engine, having had to "lay off" on account of his back. A brother of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who had been ill with similar symptoms, some time before, and who had been pulled through, called to see Mr. Zeller, and in a brotherly way, took with him a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the remedy which had cured him. He advised Mr. Zeller to try them, with the result that after seven boxes had been used, he was entirely well, and able to work.

In an interview Mr. Zeller states: "I had suffered for four years with this affliction, being often kept awake at night with pains, and at times unable to work. I tried several of the advertised remedies, and found that they did me no earthly good. Finally, a member of our Order, who had been cured of Kidney Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills brought me a box, and asked me to try them. I had little faith in them, but as a drowning man grasps at a straw to help him, so I took the Pills. I used seven boxes, and am to-day as well and strong a man as there is in Pennsylvania."

Naturally, Mr. Zeller feels very grateful, and his complete recovery has delighted his many friends, and none more than the good brother, who feels that he was instrumental in saving the life of the Chief.

Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure Kidney Trouble.

ASLEEP OR AWAKE

DETECTIVE KINCH was baffled. And the manner of his bafflement was as follows:

In my official capacity as chief of the detective department I had put Kinch on an important case of I.D.B. Now, the detective department of which I was chief was connected with a large manufacturing town in the north of England, and the important case of I.D.B. was illicit diamond selling rather than illicit diamond buying. A man, not unknown to me (professionally speaking), had attempted to dispose of a fine uncut stone to the principal jewel merchant of the town. This jewel merchant had suspicions; these suspicions he communicated to me. However, before sending to me, the dealer had arranged with the would-be seller to call again on the morrow. I sent Detective Kinch, with orders to be a concealed witness of the bargaining.

Kinch went; Kinch heard; Kinch captured. But this last he did only partially. The I.D.B. man proved his guilt by escaping, and his bad luck by leaving the diamond behind. When Kinch recovered an upright posture he put the stone in the lining of his hat. Then he carefully set forth. He did not return at once to the office and to me. Instead, he watched the temporary haunt of the illicit diamond seller. This he did for 18 hours. At the end of that somewhat tiresome period he crawled back to where I was anxiously awaiting him. And as he entered the sitting-room of the office I rose to my feet with pleasant greetings.

"What luck, Kinch, my boy?" He told me everything.

"Well, never mind," I said, soothingly, "you've already done enough to make Howard yet more jealous; you've got the stone; the man will have later. Meanwhile, I'll put this precious little pebble in my desk."

I did so. In addition, I made to lock the desk. I found that I had left my keys in the front office; I went there. Then I found that I had no matches. Fumbling about in the dark, I at last came upon my knees. By the time I had returned to the sitting-room some minutes had elapsed. And Detective Kinch was asleep.

I was not surprised. The dutiful man had been on his feet about one-and-twenty hours. It was now five a. m. I determined not to awaken him. He could sleep in that cozy armchair very well for the next hour or two; and, as for myself, I could have a pitch on the bed upstairs. I saw Kinch's bowler hat lying on the floor. I picked it up and put it on a peg behind the door. Should I close and fasten the window? Well, I am a man of many suspicions; the nature of my business and the disposition of my wife have made me so. But there was little danger, and on that sultry summer night the room was already too hot. I turned down the gas. As I left the room—quietly, so as not to disturb the slumbering man—it seemed to me that, even then, there was something that I had forgotten to do; but not for my life could I have determined the nature of that something.

In the morning I was forcibly reminded. Entering the room I found that Kinch was still asleep. I softly moved to the desk. It was not locked; that, then, was what I had forgotten to do. I lifted the lid, I looked in, I fumbled about—the diamond was gone!

Well, we raked that desk as a starving man might rake his pockets for money, and with just about as much hope. And, look where we would, we failed to find the diamond. And that was how Detective Kinch came to tell me that he was baffled.

"No one entered the room?" I asked.

"Not to my knowledge."

"You were asleep all the time?"

"All the time," he answered, stoutly.

After more searchings and more questions and more answers—all equally fruitless, all equally baffling—I suggested that Kinch had better go down stairs into the wardrobe and have some breakfast. He took that suggestion and his departure. But, first, he made to take his hat. I pointed out, quietly as I could, that such was not necessary. He admitted as much, and left his hat hanging on the peg where I had placed it overnight. Evidently the loss of the diamond had rather upset him.

When he had gone from the room I pursued my search. Its result was speedy, curious and astounding. I determined to communicate that result to Detective Kinch. I summoned him. He entered. I requested him to be seated. He sat. I told him that I had learned a little matter connected with the diamond. I asked him a few questions.

"Detective Kinch, I arrest you."

"Why?"

"The diamond has been found!"

"Where?"

"In the lining of your hat!"

"It's a plant!" blustered Kinch.

"I've no doubt," I murmured.

"Done to put me away!"

"It will probably have that result."

"But it's got to be proved!"

"What has?"

"That I did it."

There was a short silence.

"And I am going to help—"

"To put me away?"

"To prove you?"

"Guilty?"

"Innocent!"

The fellow need not have been so touchy. I am a man of many suspicions; the nature of my business and the disposition of my wife have made me so. But I often have suspicions concerning both sides of a case. And, after all, in this case, my suspicions were only suspicions; I had no certainties to go upon.

"Is there anyone who hates you?" I asked him.

"What?" he cried, "and me a zealous detective!"

"Yes, I'm aware that one of your colleagues—Howard—is rather envious. But do you know of anyone who not only hates you, but who is likely to be aware that we put this diamond in the desk? What about the fellow you so nearly nabbed—the fellow from whom you captured the stone—the fellow that escaped? Look here, Joseph Kinch, my boy, I'm going to stand by you. So don't get into a fluster. Sit down and listen. That's right! Now we can go on smoothly. Of course, I shall deprive you of your liberty, but only for your good, I hope. Besides, it's my business. Now, it so happens that I'm the man who found the gem in your hat. Therefore, I know it wasn't planted by the finder. Of course, I had a witness. Sergt. Stately was here, helping me to search. And when I looked in your hat, which was hanging on the peg there—well, I told him what I had discovered—for my own sake, you know—for my own sake, Kinch, old fellow. Besides, it was such a curious place to select; both for hiding and for seeking. Who would have thought that a thing was again in a place where one had seen it taken from?"

"That's precisely what ought to prove my complete innocence," said Kinch.

"But I haven't yet accused you; I've merely arrested you. And, in addition, as I said, I'm going to help you. Now, Kinch, my boy, I remember that you slept in this room last night; and I also remember that, owing to the heat, I left the window open. It is just possible—only just—but still it is possible—that the fellow you tried to nab followed you here. He is the only person—to our knowledge—who was aware that the diamond was in our possession, except the jewel merchant and his assistants. But, there! What would any of them want to plant the thing for? Why didn't they take it with them? So it may resolve itself into—into—shall we say your friend Howard? In any case, I'm going to see if the man who planted that diamond in your hat is coming back for it. To-night you will use the same armchair that you used last night; only to-night you will be crouched behind it—and awake!"

To my plan Kinch readily agreed. I was a reader of novels; but only a certain class of novels; and that merely for professional purposes. My favorite authors were Emile Gaboriau, Fortune Du Boisgobey, Edgar Allan Poe and Wilkie Collins. Now, I had just finished reading "The Moonstone." It will be remembered that in this work a certain diamond is lost, and that the man to whom it is of the greatest importance that the stone shall be found is the unwitting cause of its loss. He walks in his sleep, and transports the gem from a place of comparative safety to a place from whence it is taken by the real thief.

I wanted to see if Joseph Kinch were a somnambulist. I remembered that he had dropped asleep with his mind full of the diamond, its value, its hiding place—selected by me; and its carrying place—selected by himself. And I thought that, in his troubled slumbers, his subconsciousness might have been at work telling him to mistrust my selection and to use one more his own. And I also thought (drawing again upon Wilkie Collins) that, if Kinch were placed in almost his identical position of the night before, he might possibly repeat almost his identical movements.

That night, at a spy-hole in the wall just above a picture, I stationed Sergt. Stately. I wanted a witness, for Kinch's sake, and perhaps for my own. As for me, I hid in a cupboard which had a hole bored in a panel. The window was left open; the gas was turned down; and Detective Kinch was ensconced behind a chair. That I was the only occupant of my miniature Black Hole of Calcutta pleased me greatly, and I applied to the small drilled hole opening in the panel my mouth more often than my eye. Would no one come? Would nothing happen? Would I prove to be wrong? Hours passed. I languished. Kinch slept. At any rate, I heard him snore! And, after awhile, I saw that there was no need for him to watch. Then I grew proud of myself; and I hoped that Stately was looking. After all, I liked Kinch, and I was glad.

He rose; he began slowly to pace the room; he murmured to himself. "I wonder if the diamond is safe?" said he. Later, in a dreamy, gliding sort of fashion, he moved the desk, lifted the lid, fumbled at the corners, picked out the gem (for, unknown to him, I had replaced it there), and, walking to the door, he took down his hat (which I had also replaced), and he carefully put the diamond between the silk and the felt.

My theory was vindicated. Well, there was some good in those writer fellows after all. Overjoyed, I sprang out from the cupboard.

"Thank goodness you woke me," said I.

"Thank goodness you went to sleep," said I.

But—ah, there is always a but! Not long after he left the town I was strolling past a second-hand book shop. Exposed for resale was a well known novel; inside, on the fly-leaf, was a well-known signature. The novel was "The Moonstone"; the signature was "Joseph Kinch."

Now, although, in these days, I have retired, I am still a man of many suspicions; the nature of my business and the disposition of my wife have made me so. And I continually ask myself these questions: Did Joseph Kinch buy—and read—"The Moonstone" before my explanation, or after? On the first night, was Joseph Kinch asleep or awake? And on the second night, was Joseph Kinch asleep or awake—wide awake?—Tid-Dits.

Chronic Coughs and Colds Are Catarrhal Diseases.

Catarrh is the Continual Scourge of Christendom.

Catarrh hovers ominously over every city, and festers treacherously in every hamlet. It flies with vampire wings from country to country, and casts a black shadow of despair over all lands. Its stealthy approach and lingering stay makes it a dread to the physician and a pest to the patient. It charges the merry laugh of childhood to the wheezy breathing of old age, and the song of the blushing maiden to the hollow cough of consumption. In its withering grasp the rounded form of the fond wife and mother becomes gaunt and spectral, and the healthy flush of manhood turns to the sallow, haggard visage of the invalid.

Cough takes the place of conversation.

Robbins.
Mr. H. C. Jonas, deputy United States marshal, visited Robbins last Tuesday and upon his return was accompanied by one of our red citizens, who had violated the law.

Louis Friday is the possessor of a new horse purchased of G. H. Clark, of Rhinelander.

Merlin Hunter has commenced logging for F. S. Robbins.

Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Tripp spent last Saturday in Rhinelander.

Miss Mattie Peck, who is teaching the Indian school at Tripp, will spend Thanksgiving at her home in Rhinelander.

Miss Ada McKee, who is teaching school five miles north of Tripp's store, will spend Thanksgiving at her home in Rhinelander.

A new settler has located on Jennie Weberlake. The new road between Robbins and Rhinelander has opened up much new farming land.

Judd Brazell, of Rhinelander, made a business trip to Robbins last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Griffin spent last Saturday in Rhinelander.

Wolves were heard in this vicinity the other morning.

L. Nowak purchased a new horse of D. Hammel.

Jack Boland, the wide-awake logger, has commenced logging near Sand Lake.

It is expected that the settlers will bank about one million feet of logs this winter.

The freight north on the Brown-Robbins R. R. Monday left three cars of hay for F. R. Tripp.

Harehounds.

There was a dance at the hall Saturday night.

There will be song services at the church on Thursday evening.

The monthly examinations are in progress this week. The school children will probably remember to be thankful that they are over with it, while they are enjoying their freedom Thursday and Friday.

Our erstwhile, meek and unresisting Katherine has hardened her bosom to her numerous admirers. But even as with other maidens under similar circumstances, she seems to have greater attractions for those same admirers. Occasionally one is emboldened to venture nearer than his rivals when she turns his attention to the stars.

Citizenship in School.

The school is one of the places in which the child gains those ideas that tend to fit him to observe the proper relations of himself to his fellow-men. He finds on entering school that there are more restrictions placed upon his tendencies—restrictions made necessary because of the larger number of individuals concerned and the peculiar work to be done.

Along with the child's broadened conception of society is his increased responsibility as a member of the social unit. He meets that responsibility by properly observing his social relations he gains positive good. If he chooses to ignore the general welfare by doing violence to his own sense of the rights of others he finds himself restrained by an outside force. This tends him to respect authority. The child's sense of the rights of others is appealed to in various ways on the play ground as well as in the classroom. Liberty to give expression in conduct to right tendencies, and the proper restraint of wrong ones are the foundation ideas of a true democracy, and the school should and does have much to do with giving these ideas prominent place in the character structure. To the extent to which they are found they should be allowed free exercise, and to that extent the school should be a democracy.

Bids Wanted.

The county board of Oneida county will accept bids, up to December 20th, 1900 for furnishing one hundred and seventy-five cords of four foot body wood, half to be yellow birch and half hard maple. Delivery to be made on or before February 1, 1901. The committee reserves the right to reject any or all bids. B. MOYAN, Chairman.

A Card.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50 cent bottle of Green's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 50 cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded. J. J. READING, OHS-APRIL-30.
